

Students at Manorbrook Primary School wrote persuasive pieces about conservation, their local area and why you should buy local produce. Year 5 students in Thornbury completed a persuasive writing project in which they researched, interviewed and developed their writing skills before having their writing published on the Forgotten Landscape Website.

Students began by researching a local farm. They investigated farming in their local area and organisations involved in conservation.

They then invited the farmer to their school and devised some questions to find out more about his work

The farmer visited the school and was questioned by the students about his farm, his animals, the local area and his methods of conservation.

The students then used the answers to his questions and their research to write a persuasive piece about the area.

In Thornbury and the surrounding area there are hundreds of places to visit. Have you ever been to a farmers' market or a farm's open day? If not, why not try one out? There are plenty of local walks, such as Bluebell Woods walk which is beautiful. There is a perfect walk from the Mundy Playing Fields to the Severn Bridge.

As you can see, going outdoors is the perfect way to spend spare time and to relax. It's far better than playing computer games.
